

Is it time for a clear out?

Are you using all your IT equipment? Have you got phones, computers and other tech stored away and don't know what to do with it? And what about all the data that's stored on them? The last thing you want is to compromise that and suffer the consequences of not adhering to GDPR regulations.

But don't worry. We can get rid of it for you with Managed Decommissioning.

Why? As assets depreciate over time, you're wasting money and space on storing them. By acting as soon as possible, you can free up space and get the best return, all while managing your cash flow better.

How do we do it? Our project managers come in and perform audits. Then we'll take your assets and remove them or refurbish them, while ensuring secure removal of any important data, adhering to the latest Waste Electrical and Electronic Equipment (WEEE) regulations. You can protect your brand and show your dedication to eco-friendly solutions. And by making sure all sensitive data is removed, you won't have to worry about being in breach of GDPR regulations.

What about the assets we take? We can give you cash back for them, showing just how recycling pays. Literally.

We can help with Managed Decommissioning.
