Part A – The iNcare Service

1. Service summary

BT will provide you with the iNcare service, comprising:

- 1.1 a combination of the Standard Service Components; and
- 1.2 any of the Service Options as set out in any applicable Order, up to the point of the Service Management Boundary as set out in Paragraph 4 (“iNcare Service”).

2. Standard service components

The iNcare Service is a fault repair service comprising the diagnosis and repair of faults that occur through normal usage of the Customer Equipment. It has a modular structure in which Standard Service Components are combined to form a range of standard services with associated Service Levels that are identified by service level codes and descriptors as set out in Table 2 in Paragraph 15. If you choose a service that is provided by a third party supplier (identified by service level codes that begin with CARE-3P-, CON- or CARE-SPOC-) it will be provided as set out in the service description (if any) provided by the third party supplier. Unless both of us agree otherwise, you will report all Incidents and submit Service Requests as set out in Paragraph 11.

BT will provide you with a combination of the following standard service components (“Standard Service Components”) in accordance with the details as set out in any applicable Order:

2.1 Remote technical support

- 2.1.1 BT will provide you with technical support by telephone or email during Service Hours to assist you with your configuration and use of Customer Equipment or to help you identify any problems.
- 2.1.2 Where appropriate and where you provide BT with a suitable means of remote access to the Customer Equipment, BT may use a remote diagnostic service to help you.
- 2.1.3 It is your responsibility to implement the resolution of any problem identified with the Customer Equipment, including any changes to the configuration or implementation of any software updates.

2.2 Advance hardware replacement

- 2.2.1 Where BT provides you with advance hardware replacement you may either:
 - (a) let BT know of the hardware you wish to have replaced; or
 - (b) request BT to carry out remote diagnostics to try to establish the cause of any fault.
- 2.2.2 Where BT carries out remote diagnostics you may end the remote diagnostic procedure at any time by informing BT of the hardware you wish to have replaced.
- 2.2.3 BT will send replacement hardware to Site within the Response Time which will start when you have informed BT of the hardware you wish to have replaced as set out in Paragraph 2.2.1(a) or, subject to Paragraph 2.2.2, when BT has completed the remote diagnostics as set out in Paragraph 2.2.1(b).
- 2.2.4 BT will provide you with remote technical support (as set out in Paragraph 2.1) during Service Hours to aid your installation of the replacement hardware.
- 2.2.5 Any replacement hardware that BT supplies will be either new, repaired or refurbished to a similar or higher specification.
- 2.2.6 Subject to Paragraph 2.2.10, any replacement hardware that BT provides will become your property and the hardware it replaces will become BT’s property. Where the replaced hardware is owned by someone else (for example a leasing company) ownership will pass between BT and them instead, as appropriate.

- 2.2.7 You will return replaced hardware or any hardware incorrectly requested by you to BT at your own expense within two Business Days of your receipt of the replacement hardware. Regardless of this, BT may at its option and expense arrange to collect the replaced hardware instead and if BT does this, collection will normally take place within two Business Days.
- 2.2.8 When returning hardware to BT you are responsible for making sure that the replaced hardware is properly packaged, including (where applicable) a description of the failure and written specification of any change or alteration made. You will remove all of your data from any replaced hardware before it is returned to BT. BT will not be responsible for the protection, safeguarding or return of any data left on replaced hardware.
- 2.2.9 In the case of replaced hardware that has special handling requirements (for example, heavy lifting equipment) BT may require the hardware to remain on Site until BT can make suitable arrangements for its collection or return. In these circumstances you will be responsible for safe custody of the hardware until BT collects it or you return it.
- 2.2.10 In certain circumstances, BT may return the original hardware to you at BT's discretion. You will then return the replacement hardware to BT as set out in Paragraph 2.2.7. Where BT provides you with replacement hardware on a temporary basis the replacement hardware will be BT Equipment and the provisions of Paragraph 7 in respect of BT Equipment will apply.
- 2.2.11 BT may charge you for any replaced hardware that is not returned as set out in Paragraph 2.2. Such Charge will be at the hardware manufacturer's then current full list price or in the case of hardware for which no current hardware manufacturer's list price exists, at BT's reasonable cost of replacement. BT may also charge you the reasonable costs of transportation and administration where incorrect hardware is requested by you under Paragraph 2.2.1(a) or Paragraph 2.2.2.

2.3 Onsite field engineer

- 2.3.1 Where possible, BT will carry out remote diagnostics to try to identify the cause of any fault. Where necessary BT will send an engineer to Site within the Response Time. If it is not possible to identify the cause of a fault remotely the engineer will continue diagnostic investigation on Site with you. The engineer will install any replacement hardware supplied under the advance hardware replacement Standard Service Component as set out in Paragraph 2.2.
- 2.3.2 At your request, the engineer will install configurations and data onto any replacement hardware, or reinstall them onto any BT Equipment used in connection with the iNcare Service from which they have been lost. If you have purchased the configuration management standard service component of BT's iNlife service the configurations and data will be from the latest back-up made under the iNlife service. You will provide the configurations and data needed for any installation or reinstallation to BT in a timely manner and in a suitable format.
- 2.3.3 The engineer may remove all or part of the Customer Equipment from the Site for the purpose of inspection, testing and repair. If the engineer is not able to remove any faulty part from Site, BT will arrange collection of the faulty part at BT's own expense within five Business Days. Where you request the engineer not to remove any faulty part from Site, you will return the faulty part to BT as set out in Paragraph 2.2.7.

2.4 Access to the Customer Equipment Manufacturer's online support centre

- 2.4.1 BT will provide you with the necessary information to access the Customer Equipment Manufacturer's online support centre, where one is available for your use.

- 2.4.2 BT may suspend access to the Customer Equipment Manufacturer's online support centre if at any time BT considers there is or is likely to be a breach of BT's security. BT may also (at BT's sole discretion) ask you to change any or all of the User identification and passwords used by you in connection with the Customer Equipment Manufacturer's online support centre. Where BT is responsible for allocating User identification and passwords to you BT will let you know of these changes as soon as practicable.

2.5 Supply of Operating Software updates

- 2.5.1 The Customer Equipment Manufacturer may provide you with Operating Software updates that will normally be made available to you through the Customer Equipment Manufacturer's online support centre. You may ask BT for any Operating Software updates that cannot be made available directly to you online and BT will supply these to you within a reasonable time after your request or BT's receipt of the update from the Customer Equipment Manufacturer (whichever is the later). The Customer Equipment Manufacturer will decide on the availability of Major Releases, Minor Releases and Maintenance Releases from time to time and BT is not in any way liable to you for the level of availability.

- 2.6.3 It is your responsibility to install all Application Software updates.

2.7 Supply of Security Feature Set updates

- 2.7.1 Where the Customer Equipment Manufacturer provides an automatic update service, you may register with the Customer Equipment Manufacturer to receive either automatic updates or notification that an update is available. Where you choose the automatic update option, Security Feature Sets installed on the Customer Equipment or BT Equipment (where appropriate) will be updated automatically. Where you choose the notification option, following receipt of notification that an update is available you may choose to either accept or reject the update.
- 2.7.2 Where the Customer Equipment Manufacturer does not offer an automatic update service you may still be able to register with the Customer Equipment Manufacturer to receive notification that an update is available. You may be able to get Security Feature Set updates online directly from the Customer Equipment Manufacturer's online support centre. You may ask BT for any Security Feature Set updates that cannot be made available directly to you online and BT will supply these to you within five Business Days of your request or BT's receipt of the update from the Customer Equipment Manufacturer (whichever is the later). The Customer Equipment Manufacturer will decide on the availability of Security Feature Set updates from time to time and BT is not in any way liable to you for the level of availability.
